Which has not stopped the creative OSHC children who have been busy; making mermaid crowns, jewelry, paper plate snakes, chalk drawing, origami money boxes, Yayoi Kusama inspired dot paintings, practicing ball skills, playing cricket and AFL, BUSH OSHC, drama, and much , much more..

During Nutrition Week we will be discussing dietary recommendations and other health/food ideas. We will also be discussing the food we serve at OSHC and the strict guidelines we have to follow in planning, preparing and serving food and We are participating in National Water Week had various activities including making and using rain water collectors out of recycled materials, timing washing hands and making sure that taps are turned off properly and creating posters all about water conservation and things we can do at home.

For developing sustainability awareness, the children are involved in our garden care and regular discussions of how we can embed sustainability into our day to day service. Recently we have continued with our recycled materials arts and craft activities along with making sure we turn off the lights and power points when we don't need them.
